

ABSTRACT

A method for recruiting artists whereby a talent business can streamline the talent discovery process. In particular, the talent business receives and evaluates
5 submissions of artistic works over global computer networks and engages an artist, whose works have been received, in a contract. This talent business is exemplified by a record business but may encompass any talent business, such as in the modeling or script writing industries.